PROPOSED CUT OF WAR DEBTS AROUSES FOES

Next Move in Europe is Up to Germany as the French Premier Speeds Home

Washington, Oct. 26 (AP)—A new deal to lighten the nation's enormous budget of war debts and reparations between the next post of international statesmanship today as Premier Laval of France sped homeward after his conference with President Hoover.

The initiative is to be left to Germany, expected to ask some relief from her reparations debts. France is expected to accept provided the debt is reduced, and the United States is ready to consider proposals for such a reduction.

OPPOSITION AROUSED
Neither Mr. Hoover nor M. Laval was in a position to commit his government definitely.

Any curtailment of the United States must eventually have the approval of Congress, where the opposition already is preparing to vote.

The French government might veto any cut in German reparations.

Both President and premier, however, rely apparently on the force of circumstances and the need of economic betterment to carry the point.

Secretary of State Stimson said today the House-Laval conversations had fulfilled all his expectations.

GOLD OUTFLOW HALTED
The move more largely immediate results of the negotiations embraced a pledge of mutual aid in providing French and American monetary systems of the gold standard.

The plan is to stabilize the international exchange, and to work out a plan for the stabilization of the gold standard.

No more French attacks on the dollar are expected. French gold withdrawal from New York already are being halted.

"I have heard," she said, "that there is another game between the Navy and the Army on December 12."

She was asked what was the first thing she would do after her arrival in New York.

"To come back," she laughed.

JAPAN REFUSES ABSENCE TO LEAGUE

Lack of Unanimous Vote Given as the Reason: Troops Go Farther Into Manchuria

Tokyo, Oct. 26 (AP)—The Japanese Government tonight issued a statement saying that in view of the League of Nations Council's failure to obtain a unanimous vote on the resolution calling for evacuation of Japanese troops from Manchuria by November 16, the action was not binding in any way whatever.

Issued after a special meeting of the cabinet, the statement said that the attack taken by Japan at the time of the outbreak at trouble in Manchuria remained unaltered.

STAINLESS STAND
The government's statement maintained that the Manchuria trouble was occasioned by a provocative attack on Chinese soldiers in the Japanese-occupied South Manchurian Railway and the ensuing clash with Japanese troops and civilians on the part of the League of Nations Council.

The statement said that the Japanese government had no intention of withdrawing its troops from Manchuria following reports of attacks by Chinese bandits.

Gen. Honjo said the maneuver was to protect the Kwantung Army's position in Manchuria.

The report said about 100 bandits, many masquerading as Chinese troops, attacked stations near Changhai and Jiamusi.

They also attacked other stations where Japanese have property and are active.

'Al' Smith Shows Laval New York From the 'Sky'

With a very charming conversation with the Senator, but I am sure I could have done it to do a little interview with his own. He turned to the newspaper man who had been with him and said:

"What do you gentlemen think of my visit here?"

One of the reporters replied: "From the journalistic standpoint, excellent."

At that the Premier laughed.

BOBBAH'S BLAST AROUSES SPIT WITH LAVL

Demand for Treaty Revision Is Seen as Likely to Affect 1932 Campaign

Washington, Oct. 26 (AP)—In the wake of the special conference of President Hoover and Tommie Laval, Washington today gauged the reaction to the explosive interlude of Senator Borah.

The Idaho Republican's blunt declaration to French newspapers that the world needed revision of the Versailles treaty of peace with Germany left a gap between him and the French Premier that was expected to be bridged in the coming days.

Senator Borah last night at the French embassy in Washington, left no intimation that he was left to sanction revision of the World War treaty of peace, which ever else he and Mr. Hoover may have agreed to in their announced understanding.

SEE EFFECT IN 1932
But Senator Borah found today that his final handling with Mr. Laval and an invitation to visit Paris for further talks had not ended the incident.

Borah was receiving plenty of attention within the Senate. Among other messages he had invited people to carry his proposals to the people.

Whether this would serve to carry Borah further into the political arena and into the 1932 presidential campaign was a matter of question among astute political leaders.

Reaction to the invitation of the premier to go abroad Borah saw the election next year as a possible reason for declining.

MRS. JUDD ACTS NOW AS IF SHE WERE CRAZED

Prosecutor Finds Witnesses Who Heard Death Shots and Saw Hand Bandaged

Los Angeles, Oct. 26.—Indications that insanity will be the basis of Winnie Ruth Judd's plea when she is called on to answer for the killing of Miss Hedwig Samuelson and Mrs. Agnes Anne Leroy cropped out today as investigators began collecting evidence to contradict her story.

Dr. William C. Judd, the suspect's husband gave what authorities considered an intimation of a change in the plan for a legal defense when he said, after visiting his wife:

"Her mind is wandering—she seemed to think she had been in her hospital room all last night."

In the county jail Mrs. Judd was denied all visitors, except her husband and her attorneys, Richard Cantillon and Louis P. Tusculi.

NEW DEVELOPMENTS

Today's developments are:

- 1—Discovery of several important Phoenix witnesses who heard the death shots; others who saw Mrs. Judd with right hand (not left) bandaged.
- 2—Assertion by her husband, Dr. Judd, that she seems to be losing her mind—first indication that insanity will be her defense.
- 3—Discovery of her hiding place at La Vina and of the loss of a green dress and coat by a sanitarium patient.
- 4—Zemphale declarations by County Attorney Lloyd J. Anderson of Phoenix that Mrs. Judd's purported "new story" is "pure bunk" and an attempt to cover up the fact that she apparently killed between Mrs. Judd and her victims.
- 5—Jury called that she had written, given, dictated or authorized.

"Herbert, darling, can't you move that rifle just a little? It's hurting my ribs."

"I'm sorry, dear, but I promised Chief Pierce I would hold it steady like this. Perhaps if you put your arm around here—so—you'll be comfortable."

Eavesdroppers on the "highways and byways" in and about Peabody are apt to hear some such conversation now, any night now, for hereafter, when a young man takes his girl out riding, or parking, rather, in that town, Police Chief Edward F. Pierce is going to see that they are protected.

RIFLES FOR THE ASKING

Aroused by two holdups last night, one of a young couple parked on a lonely road, the chief announced today that he will assign rifles to any couple contemplating parking who fear they may be disturbed.

"The highways and byways belong to the people," the police chief declared, "and there is no law against couples parking. If they wish to park in Peabody, we will arm them if they will come to the police station."

TWO MEN ROBBED

The cause of Chief Pierce's novel declaration of war was the robbery of Thomas Condon, 25, of Salem, while with a girl in a car parked in Forest st. West Peabody. Four gunmen took $200 from Condon.

A little later bandits, believed to be the same four, held up Edmund Ludwig, of Peabody, and his home in English st. and robbed him of $45.

RED STRIKERS' NEW 'ARMY' IN MARCH FOILED BRIDGE 'WAR'

Lawrence, Oct. 26.—More than 200 radical strikers, who marched on City Hall today and demanded the use of the Common for meetings, were dispersed by police after the City Council had voted unanimously to ignore them.

With the arrival of the strikers, who were followed by a crowd of 100 spectators, the police advanced and halted them. Their leaders told Sgt. James Gallagher that they wanted to be heard by the City Council.

This was refused and the radicals made some noise, but were quickly dispersed and went to La Follette Hall on Essex st. for a meeting.

Shortly afterward a picket line of about 100 women and girls formed in front of City Hall by Ignazio Capanni, a radical organizer was broken up and Capanni arrested.

IT BETIMES TO FIND IT IS THE LORD'S DAY AND needs must get my church out of the church. Malinche might follow along and listen to becoming sermons but have to change my mind when find My Lord and Master is confined to bed with mighty pain. Some consolation was derived from knowledge that it was not serious.

public, which horses me mightily this day.

Anon did my accounts and do find that in spite of rigid economies cannot yet buy sable coat. Leave accounts with feeling of weariness.

Then to lunch of roast pork and apple sauce. Girls prate noisily of Sunday school and methinks children should be seen and not heard, God bless them.

A pesky wet afternoon with mischievous children abounding all over the house, running and shouting 'til I must needs make myself off to my study to pen my message for my dear public, which horses me mightily this day.

Stylish Hunt Clubs at Horse Show

PINK COAT NIGHT I DO LEARN WILL BE ON TUESDAY night the coming week when riders from the stylish hunt clubs will perform and parade in Boston Garden. Much talk this day about forthcoming Horse Show. Hugh Bancroft, purveyor of squire of dames and horses, will enter his team in competition with teams of Norfolk and Millwood. Meditate on society circuit traveling back and forth from town and country showing horses.

RECEIVED BY POST SOME letters for the monthly supper to be given after Horse Show. Today night will keep in mind to be a civil to Mrs. G. A. R. and Mrs. F. A. R. when next we meet. Whereby I shall break my fast, but recently at least in small myself of a hearty repeat later.

DID HEAR of new drink thing called Ginkete. The first I tried out but it do improve on second thought. Do recommend it heartily for visiting army teams.

SATURDAY EVENING I DID occupy a goodly seat to see and hear "Private Lives." Laughed till tears did descend there was down blushing cheeks. A private top-hole show. Much diverted from heavy eyes of day. Did watch the crowd and saw many comely women. Fair Rosamond of the Rust family parading in delectable green velvet and Miss Betty Marvin masquerading as a queen in lace. Meditated on the homeliness of male.

POST BROUGHT FAN LETTER this day which pleased me mightily. Extract from letter:

Dignity Rules Junior Leaguer Dress Theme Weds Thursday

By ANN ARDEN
THEY CALL this era of elegance. And so it is. But after all the shouting about new things has died down, it can be seen more clearly that elegance means dignity and good taste rather than a vast and conglomerate array of multiplied materials and trimmings.

WHETHER the formal dress of the season is to velvet or satin or brocade, it is still kept in the finest sense of its design, simple and uncluttered. There is a great deal of intricacy to the cut of the clothes, and the manner of their making, but their ultimate effect is quite simple.

THE SEMI-FORMAL evening gown is gaining in popularity, and is especially effective in the contrasting blouse type. The given picture has lines of simple dignity, is fashioned of beautiful materials and would prove a perfect choice for dinner or theater wear.

THE SKIRT is of black tulle, parent velvet, having clear circular fullness. The overblouse is of shallow pleated metal cloth, its appearance caught with jeweled clip center front. The back has marked by the shoulders accentuating the waist decolletage, and strap by long scarf of the black velvet. There are ear rings and a bracelet of brilliants and silver slippers repeating the blouse tone.

BRACELETS that will look well with both afternoon and evening clothes are made of rhinestones that fit into each other so that they move about easily and jangle a bit as bracelets should. They are something quite fresh and new in the jewelry line.

ANN ARDEN will answer questions concerning clothes, social customs or fashions generally. Address your questions to the Boston Evening American or to the Boston Evening Advertiser or in station WAAR.

THE RIGHT TIME we were making chop suey again, judging by the letters that have come in asking for the recipe in how to make "hottest" chop suey that will taste like the kind the restaurant serve.

Well, even do better than that—we'll give you a recipe that, in our opinion, produces chop suey second to none ever made this side of the Pacific.

The up-to-date housewife is certainly alive to possibilities of combining economy, novelty and prepared right in her own home.

There's an added incentive to branch out into fresh fields since the announcement of the $500 in cash prizes, which is offered for the best suggestions on how to prepare and serve chop suey, chow mein and other Chinese dishes.

(I'll be glad to send you full particulars of this contest if you'll drop me a line, or you can get a leaflet at your nearest grocer's. I believe "The contest" closes on November 21 so it's time to get going!)

Here's a recipe which should be divided if you wish to serve more than four people with moderate appetites, or two who can eat a plentiful heaped with true Chinese generosity.

CHINESE CHOP SUEY

1 lb. lean pork, cut in 1/2 inch cubes.
1 lb. onions.
Heat 2 cups of cooking oil or drippings in a heavy kettle. Add the meat, cut in small dice and cook quickly until the meat is brown. Spread over the meat, without stirring, the onions which have been cut in fine dice and on top of the onions spread the dried celery. Add 2 cups of thick Chinese brown sauce and 1/2 cups of Chinese soy sauce, and stir the from one can of Chinese bean sprouts. Cover tightly and cook without stirring, over a hot fire for 10 minutes. Rapid cooking is the secret of success with chop suey. Now spread the contents of the can of sprouts on top of the mixture and cook for 2 minutes more. Mix 2 cups of flour or cornstarch with water enough to make of the right consistency to thicken, pour the thickening in at the edge of the pan and stirring very gently. Don't stir enough to make "chop suey" mushy.

A can of chow mein (fried egg noodles) should have been heated in the oven and is now spread in the bottom of a hot serving dish or on individual serving plates. The chop suey is poured over the noodles and served at once, with additional soy sauce. Shredded green peppers, sliced tomatoes or pimientos, may be added if desired, or diced pineapple, mushrooms, shrimp or chicken.

I also have a recipe for chop suey for 100, which is an economical money saver at club and church suppers. I'll gladly send it to you.

The young lady in the picture certainly looks as though she's enjoying her chop suey luncheon, with its accompanying cup of tea and alcohol bread.

THE leavening of Rumford takes place in this proportion. That's why it is called "two-to-one" leavening.

Two-to-one leavening makes dough that is light when it is placed in the oven. In the oven's heat just the right amount of additional leavening occurs to make cakes and hot breads of perfect lightness and texture.

Bryan Foy Will Produce Two Reel Operas With Lew Seiler Directing

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Universal Service Motion Picture Editor

CHICAGO, Oct. 26.—Four times are used to tell what a great western Broncho Billy was in his thrillers we have been hearing that some producer or other was going to put grand opera on the screen. It has remained for young Bryan Foy to do more than talk. He will produce two reel operas, directed by Lew Seiler, and musically supervised by Jan Shamus.

The first, "Cavalleria Rusticana," will have Elsie Peterson for its prima donna. For those who are not as well acquainted with Miss Peterson as we of Los Angeles, she followed Mary Lewis as the prima donna of the Follies. She has a grand opera voice and has been singing in "Rain or Shine."

Foy, who produced the baseball series for Louella O. Parsons, Universal, will undoubtedly release his film operas through the Laemmle organization.

Clara Abandons Trip

The "it" girl, and you know who I mean, and friends that she was on her way to New York. When she reached Gallup, New Mexico, she had a change of heart and turned around and went back home. Our impulsive Clara Bow started a trip across the country to visit New York. Perhaps she felt she was entitled to a little vacation before she begins her contract with Sam Rork Dec. 1. But once she got on the train she decided it was wiser to stay in California. Clara has more sense than most of us for once we make a start we seldom turn back. Harry Richmond, who will always be considered a good friend by Clara, had a telegram saying she was enroute to see the Follies.

The one film producer who neither signed a star nor bought a play while in Europe is Sol Wurtzel. "I met Sol on the train."

WORLD IN JAM, SAYS IL DUCE

Naples, Italy, Oct. 26 (AP)—Benito Mussolini returned to Rome today after selling 100,000 of his Fascist followers here that "something is jammed, perhaps broken," in world economy and that the Versailles treaty and the schedule of war reparations payments should be revised.

The treaty, Il Duce told his legions, here to celebrate the 15th anniversary of the Fascist March on Rome, has pushed millions of people to the brink of material disaster and moral desperation. Mussolini said, nations must be just and the "ragged bookkeeping" of debts and reparations must end. If some heroic recovery is to be achieved.

Let's talk Straight from the Shoulder

WHAT'S the net of this cigarette question? Let's lay the facts face up. What you want in a cigarette is balance. You want mildness... smoothness... and pleasure when you smoke. You rule out harshness, bitterness and bite. All right then... get this straight.

IT'S no secret that Chesterfield pays top prices... yes, and a premium for the ripest, mellowest, sweetest-tasting leaf that grows. But it makes Chesterfields taste better and smoke smoother... and that to us is a justifiable extravagance. The men who buy Chesterfield tobacco are experts in the art of judging and selecting this quality leaf.

The men who do the curing and conditioning are specialists, too... carefully trained in handling these fine tobaccos.

IN BLENDING, Chesterfields are also different.

Instead of merely mixing the tobaccos together... we cross-blend them. It's like making a new and better-tasting kind of tobacco—a tobacco with greater smoothness, more mildness, and a more pleasing aroma. That's how we get that Chesterfield flavor. Milder... riper... mellow.

What about cigarette paper?... That's part of the story, too. Only the best that's made—the purest and finest—is good enough for Chesterfield. Pick up a package. Note its clean appearance... free from heavy inks. And it's moisture-proof.

And three big factories at Richmond, Durham and San Francisco—operating under the strictest sanitary standards—rush them fresh to you.

Good... they're got to be good. Because they're made that way.

And most important of all... you can taste this goodness in the cigarette. You can tell it in the smoke.

Light up, Mister! Try Chesterfield. Let the cigarette do its own talking. You'll get the whole thrilling story, in just two words... "They Satisfy!"

"Yes Sir—Mild yet they Satisfy"

BRITISH CHURCH MEN SNUB AMERICAN PAROCHIALISM

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

THE DELEGATES TO THE DECENNIAL Ecumenical Conference of the Methodists of the world, held at Atlanta last week, were fortunate in being able to listen to the views expressed by their brothers from other countries of the world, particularly from Great Britain, the birthplace of Methodism. It may not have been a novel or a pleasant experience to listen to a plain statement of what the rest of the world thinks about certain things which are especially dear to the hearts of American Methodists, but it was undoubtedly a salutary experience and will prove more salutary, if it does even a little to correct that parochialism and provincialism which are inevitable in all organizations. Faithful are the wounds of a friend.

The first wound came when the British delegates stated frankly that they had not gone to the trouble of crossing the Atlantic to have the attention of the conference monopolized by the discussion of Prohibition, especially when there are so many other subjects as important or even more important, which demand consideration.

Public Opinion as Censor

The second wound came when another British delegate read his brothers in the faith a little lecture on the folly of censorship. He reminded them that although a certain amount of censorship may be necessary, the danger of too much should be recognized. "Let us not make the mistake the Puritans did when they closed the theaters," he is reported to have said. "Let us, rather, educate the people. Public opinion is the final censorship." He was referring principally to the press and the films, always favorite concerns of the brethren.

Unpalatable as both these ideas may be to the nominant wing of American Methodism, in fact, of all American evangelism, the source from which they come must be considered respectfully. Methodism started in England; it has always been the most solid, substantial and successful of the non-conformist bodies. It is the product of a civilization and a philosophy which believes in making haste slowly, in slowly broadening down from precedent to precedent.

The evangelicals of England have fought the liquor traffic, and apparently more successfully than their brothers over here. By an unremitting policy of regulation and taxation they are markedly improving social conditions. Everyone agrees that the Britisher is drinking far less than he used to. And all this without the back swing of protest we have suffered over here, which has made drinking habitual among thousands who did not drink before, and, above all, without the anarchy and lawlessness of racketeering born of American methods of prohibition.

The British, too, have had their experience of censorship. They have the Lord Chamberlain and the King's censor of plays. The most comment among Englishmen who may be supposed to know something about the question is that censorship has hardly limited the presentation of the silly, the trivial, the doubtful and the indecent, but it has interfered seriously with the production of important literary drama and limited its scope of subject matter and treatment. England still believes that freedom of the press, the platform, and the arts is safest.

Evangelical Sects Strong

The evangelical sects in America are, taken together, the most powerful. The Methodist and the Baptist church alone claim nearly ten million communicants each. Their strength, however, lies in the South and West, where the general average of education and progress, among both layman and preacher, is lowest. In the East these sects are strong, but not so strong as to dominate the community as they do elsewhere. Consequently they are infinitely better educated, more liberal, more tolerant, and more civilized. But the denominations as a whole are dominated by those sections where the standards of civilization are lowest.

These sections are the direct inheritors of the older evangelism described by James Truslow Adams in his admirable "The Epic of America." He says: "At first the frontier was a frontier of hardy men, a great, enterprising, but about 1800 the less intellectual and more emotional appeal of the Baptist, and especially the Methodist faith, swept the frontiers men into those folds. These denominations did not believe in a learned ministry and their appeal went all to the emotions. The almost incredible camp meetings called both to the settler's desire for company and to his need for expression in emotional life. The sublimations of his starved social and emotional life were suddenly removed by the mass psychology of these vast gatherings, which thousands would exhibit pathological symptoms in witness."

"Although such meetings were greatly obscured by the more substantial men, they were a natural outcome of the abnormal conditions in many sections of American life. . . . The camp meeting was a key to what had been in pre-sent-day life, in a nation ever yet emotionally starving."

Drive for Holiness Goes On

This emotional search for individual holiness led directly to the campaign for universal holiness which has never ceased. Only unworried frontiersmen, unfamiliar with the idea of a complex and liberal civilization, could believe in the possibility of regimented morality, morality by law. Out of this attitude has grown the activities of the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, which has alienated thousands of former well-wishers from sympathy with a conception of evangelism which is apparently willing to take the responsibility of setting up another Theocracy in our country, notwithstanding the complete failure of the first.

The concept of censorship by government statute in all departments of life is a dream of anarchy, well-meaning and essentially ignorant people. It is unfortunate that this type of leader and layman is most influential, politically, in American evangelism. But it is very fortunate that some of these people, in their very stronghold in the South, should have had the opportunity to hear the views of a branch of their church which is obviously much more sensible, much more worldly wise, much more tolerant and liberal—and, therefore, demonstrably more successful than our evangelists seem likely to be.

OFFICER OFFERS BLOOD TO BOY

Special Officer James McKee of City Point station, slipped out of his official role in offering blood to save the life of a 10-year-old boy.

McKee had received a message at the station from Massachusetts General Hospital that John McKenna, Jr., 10, of 19 Howe p. South Boston, for some time a sufferer from a spinal infection, was in a serious condition and in immediate need of a blood transfusion.

McKee went to the McKenna home and notified the mother, Mrs. Harry McKenna, and she promptly collapsed. Both she and her husband, she said, were weakened from illness and she feared the hospital would accept neither to give blood.

McKee promptly exclaimed: "If they refuse your blood, they can have mine for the boy. I'm healthy enough."

He was asked to wait at the station and was told he would be notified there if he was needed.

INTERVIEWS WITH NEW ENGLAND BUSINESS—No. 5

A SPEEDY SEND-OFF FOR A NEW PRODUCT ACCOMPLISHED BY TELEPHONE

By a Prominent Roofing Manufacturer* as told to a representative of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company

EARLY in September our roofing mill developed a new line of shingles. At four-thirty one afternoon, the sales department was notified that the new shingles were ready. Salesmen in the entire Eastern Division were immediately notified by telephone. Next morning every New England salesman reported at the plant for a sales meeting; received instructions regarding the new products; was provided with samples and went back to his territory. Then, by telephone and personal visit, he introduced his new products to the trade. Factory salesmen supplemented the visits of field men by making telephone calls between such visits. We invite telephone calls, charges reversed, from dealers desirous of fast service. A large volume of our business is thus handled with a speed which no other agency could impart. Good telephone service helps us to give immediate delivery all over the East.

We must always regard prohibition as an open question. Our best judgment would be in evidence if we were called temperance as pure, sensible, in testing what God has given us for use and not abuse. PROVER

New York, Oct. 26.—The prices of leading shares on the New York Stock Exchange today turned downward on a dull turnover. Quotations drifted 1/2 to 1 point lower for a number of important issues, as fresh buying stimulus was lacking, and traders were inclined to take profits.

The closing was soft. Transactions, however, were only about one and a quarter million shares.

CLOSE ABOVE LOWS

Closing prices were into above the day's lowest, but recovery generally amounted to small fractions. Bonds were irregularly active, as the German obligation drove sharply, partially reflecting disappointment that a treaty with American debt failed to come out of the Hoover-Laval conference.

American Telephone received a point, after declining 3/4. Miscellaneous issues of about 2 to 4 points at the finish. Important American issues, such as the Standard Oil, U. S. Steel, Consolidated Gas, Eastern Kodak, Alcoa, and others.

North American National Bank, New York Central, Union Pacific, Southern Railway, and others.

Wall St. was keenly interested in the closing of the Hoover-Laval conference, and several prominent bankers felt that the groundswell had been laid for a reopening of the international situation.

Some leading bankers have been further inclined to believe that the situation should come from the other side of the Atlantic, as indicated in the Hoover-Laval statement.

IMPORTANT MEETINGS

Some leading bankers have been further inclined to believe that the situation should come from the other side of the Atlantic, as indicated in the Hoover-Laval statement.

Bankers said pronounced progress has already been made in the Franco-American banking conference toward the cooperation of the two nations in the stabilization of the dollar.

6-Hour Day Is Certain It Will Make Labor and Capital More Secure

The six-hour day is coming to this country and no power on earth can stop it.

When laborers worked from fourteen to twenty hours a day, they were treated for criminals when they begged and demanded shorter hours of work.

Short-sighted employers did not know or did not want to know that the man who works happily for a reasonable length of time is more efficient and more useful than his brother who toils in drudgery and goes on working to bed and from bed to his work again. They did not want to know.

They did not know what the intelligent employers of America knew—that there are direct parallels between short hours and high wages and increased profits and general prosperity. But the ten-hour day and the eight-hour day came at last and convicted them of obstinate stupidity.

Even in this country there are capitalists who will fight the further shortening of the hours of labor. They will ask, "What is this thing going to end? If the workers get a six-hour day, soon they will be asking for a four-hour day and of last we shall be paying them a full day's wage for doing nothing."

"This thing" will end when the able capitalist divides the profits of modern efficiency, made possible by organization and new machines, more fairly among the men whom he employs.

Many employers, under the pressure of the depression, have already done this. The Manufacturing Chemists' Association of leading corporations in the chemical industry, have recently established a six-hour day in order to give work to the largest possible number of men—and it has worked well. It has worked very well as emergency relief, that the president of the big corporations says: "It may well be that it will become a permanent policy."

In times of stress and peril, wise men do things they should have done before and find their accomplishment easy. So it will be with the six-hour day, and when it is accepted everywhere in the big industries of America it will show its many benefits.

It will help to pull us up out of the depression. It will give jobs to new workers who have been displaced by machines.

It will increase their productivity. It did so, from 3 to 4 per cent, in one cereal plant where it has been tried.

It will give workers more time for recreation, for development, for education.

It will make both labor and capital more secure in these United States.

And it will prove that any man who opposes it now does not really understand his own business.

Foreign Flattery

It is understood in Washington that diplomatic conversations are being conducted between London, Paris and Berlin, with the purpose of having President Hoover come to The Hague in January to the World Economic Conference, which will deal with the cancellation of the Allied debts to the United States, the question of reparations, the stabilization of weak currencies, and with the gold situation.

It is believed that President Hoover is likely to accept such an invitation, and may go from The Hague to Geneva to open the Disarmament Conference.

The friends of the administration consider that these flattering suggestions and invitations by foreign powers are a great tribute to the President's high position and outstanding statesmanship.

Doubtless these suggestions ARE flattering. They are MEANT to be.

They are also undeniably a tribute to the great power and position of the President of the United States, and they are probably in addition a grateful and expectant testimonial to the altruistic statesmanship of Mr. Hoover.

But it is to be hoped that Mr. Hoover will not be tempted by the flattery of foreign diplomats to follow in the footsteps of Woodrow Wilson, and abandon his own country, and the interests of his own country, and the support of his own countrymen, merely to gain the plaudits of foreign peoples, and to glory in the personal satisfaction of looming a large figure in European councils.

President Wilson's expedition to Europe accomplished nothing beneficial for the world or for his own country or for himself. The Versailles Treaty will always be a blot upon the page of history.

Moreover, his surrender of the principles which he himself had advocated, and which the American public had loyally supported, cost him his popularity, and perhaps his health, in the shock which followed the intensely hostile reception by the American people of his altered acts and attitude.

The President of the United States is elected by the people of the United States, and paid to be President of the United States and to remain in this country and attend unremittently to the interests of the United States.

The successful appeal which foreign diplomats make to the vanity of American public officials, causing them to forget and neglect the requirements of their own country, is most offensive to the American people, and most disheartening to those who desire to honor and respect American statesmen.

There are many things which require the attention of an American President here in America—more perhaps than ever before in the history of recent administrations; and it is to be hoped that Mr. Hoover will not be seduced by the flattering suggestions of the representatives of foreign powers to leave his own land and to put himself more and more closely under the baneful influence of foreign diplomats.

It is difficult to abuse good citizens by law, but a constitutional amendment might be enacted which would make departure from the country by the President of the United States within the consent of the Congress tantamount to a resignation of his office.

There is, however, no way to prevent an American citizen's mind and sympathies from sliding in foreign lands if that citizen is not affected by the patriotic injunction of George Washington to keep free from foreign entanglements and from undue sympathy and affection for any foreign nation.

Strange Viewpoint

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Believe as You Please

YOU DON'T agree with me?

You say it angrily

As though you expected me

To be angry, too.

But I am not angry.

I know you have a right

To believe as you please

And I respect

that right.

I may not ad-mir your beliefs

I may think it is founded in tolerance

and fear;

I may even

thank God

That I'm not as cockeyed as you are!

Yet I respect your right

To be cockeyed.

If that's the way

You honestly wish to be.

I respect your right

To believe as you please.

Because I know that it is your most fundamental

And sacred prerogative.

Belief is the process

By which we grow.

Our minds grow

By taking on new beliefs.

As our bodies grow

By taking on new food.

We do not retain all our beliefs;

Most of them

Are not worth retaining.

And if we try to do so

Life will knock it

Out of us.

But that doesn't matter;

A fool belief

Is as valuable and sacred

As a wise belief.

For we learn as much

Through our mistakes

As through our successes—

Maybe more.

Belief is the process

By which we grow.

And the blackest sin

Is for one human being

To hinder or hurt that process

In another human being.

That law goes for everyone—

For friends and sweethearts,

For husbands and wives.

And particularly for parents

Who, through love or custodianship

Try to mold their children's minds

To the pattern of their own;

For a molded mind

Becomes no mind at all.

And to prevent another

From doing his own thinking

Is mental murder.

My mind cannot grow

By using your thoughts.

Any more than my body can grow

By using your digestion.

The only truth that is of any service to me

Is the truth.

I dig out for myself.

Try to mold their children's minds

Bigger and better, than my truth.

But my truth, however cockeyed,

And I'll have to live by it

Until I discover larger wisdom.

So stop being mad

By taking on new beliefs.

Because we have different beliefs—

That's our right.

That's our duty.

That's the law of our being—

RESPECT THAT LAW!

Ultimate indifference: Edna

Among additions to the household

It always struck me goldfish were least I did.

At breakfast today there were some laughs for generations ago.

Wrote cracks about the Gay Nin-

Henry Sell sighed cynically: "But it

Robert Garlind, the critic, has

He had in the Boston Public Library, of course, a remarkable foundation upon which to spread his own genius. But that this Library has retained its eminence and that it has commanded a clientele greater than any other American city, in proportion

I wonder why theatrical producing inspires a glumness. The glumness looking man along the Rialto is Pio Zieglio. Earl Carroll and George White are cameo of calm.

I saw A. L. Erlanger every day for years but never saw him smile.

Brook Pemberton is another monochrome in melancholy. Arthur

Hopkins, Belasco, George M. Co-

han, Jed Harris and Winthrop Ames

are invariably austere. And Lee

Shubert expresses the carved serenity of the Indian chief. Perhaps the happiest looking of all is John Golden, but I have yet to hear him burst into an uproarious laugh.
